

“Calm Insistence”

A Poem by Mary Margaret Park

with calm insistence
the wind
feathered my thoughts into a restful place

all things were considered possible
then accepted without question

he stood there...

elegance so apparent
in his striking pose
his demeanor serious
then delighted

crystallizing into...

a flash of clarity
saturated with certainty
the strings of angst
bursting into

butterflies of intoxication

he pulled me near his arms the world's acceptance encompassing all that was just and righteous

...with his belief

mary@mmp-publishing.com <http://www.marymargaretpark.com>

Copyright © 2009 (MMP Publishing) – All rights reserved – No portion may be copied or transmitted without authorization.